The goal of this project is to test two hypotheses: (1) that human respiratory infections are associated with altered immunity to Streptococcus pneumoniae and other encapsulated bacterial pathogens; and (2) that these altered responses to inhaled bacteria may be amenable to manipulation by altering the structure of ambient mucosal particles. Our specific aims are to: (1) To examine the association between human respiratory infection and immunity to encapsulated bacterial pathogens. We will test the hypothesis that human respiratory infection is associated with altered susceptibility to infection with encapsulated bacterial pathogens by determining whether individuals with recent viral upper respiratory tract infections are more likely to develop pneumonia caused by S. pneumoniae or less likely to develop invasive bff6bb2d33

Q: QT, using QTemplates in QTableView and QTable Widget I have a mainwindow that loads a file with multiple QTableWidgets and QTableViews. I have implemented an entire paging structure for the tables. It works great in the QTableView class and is OOCSS. The issue I'm having is the QTableWidget class is using a completely different paging structure. I want to add QTemplates to the QTableWidget class to do the job. QT has put together the QTableWidget class as a chain of several objects. I want to put together a new chain to do the same for QTableWidget. The issue I'm running into is how to get a reference to each of the elements in the QTableWidget class. What is the best way to do this? Thanks. A: You can access the items() of a QTableWidget, and iterate through them like you would with a QList. The problem is that you have to use setItem() and setItemWidget() to be able to work with an individual cell or row in the table. This works for me as a template for a new paging class: #include #include #include #include #include #include class Pager : public QWidget { Q_OBJECT public: Pager(); QList getPagedItems(const QTableWidget* tableWidget); QPixmap getPagerPixmap(QTableWidget* tableWidget,int currentPage,int previousPage); void drawPagerRects(const QVector& page_rects, QPainter& p); private: QList m_list; QList::iterator m_it; }; Pager::Pager() { QApplication a(argc, argv); qDebug()
